

Market leading logistics education

Transportation logistics

An increasing amount of goods is being transported longer distances. How do you ensure that your transports are carried out in the best way possible, with acceptable quality and at a reasonable cost?

Large, global transport companies are becoming even larger and the volume of goods is increasing. New services and products are being launched at a rapid pace and the demand for speed, flexibility, precision and control is constantly increasing.

The demand for knowledge is increasing at the same rate...

Transportation logistics

- Transporters' effect on logistics
- Logistics' role and effect on companies and the market
- The new transport market!

Transportation logistics

For companies that purchase transports, the transport function is becoming more significant since an increasing amount of goods is being transported longer distances. At the same time, it is becoming common to outsource transport operations, which in turn places high demands on purchasing competence, clear requirement specifications, and quality measurement.

This course will provide people that work with transport a better understanding of modern transport possibilities and conditions and how they affect the entire logistics chain. During the course, theoretical training is alternated with practical exercises and casework. (Transport logistics is included in the certification program in logistics, CLSilf®, but is also given as an independent course.)

From the contents

- The effect of transport on logistics
- Transport finance/calculations
- Main focus calculation
- Purchasing of transport services
- Transports within EU/Infrastructure
- Choice of transport method
- Traceability of goods
- Transport law
- Shipping agent's role – customer's role

Purpose and educational objectives

You will broaden your knowledge within the area, transport logistics and gain an in-depth understanding for the role of transporters in the entire logistics chain.

Who should attend?

The course is aimed primarily at people who work with transport, purchasing, distribution and inventory and also at people who work comprehensively with logistics development and/or program development within this area.

The transport sector is one of the world's fastest growing industries. More is being transported by an increasing number of transporters.

